19. (New) The method of claim 18, wherein one of the indications from the pixel sensor indicates a first primary color component;

and

another one of the indications from the pixel sensor indicates another primary color component different from the first primary color component.

Boul

DI

- 20. (New) The method of claim 18, further comprising: converting the indications from the pixel sensor into a digital representation; and storing the digital representations in the storage locations in response to the coupling.
- 21. (New) The method of claim 18, further comprising: forming a pixel sensor array that includes the pixel sensor.